GENERAL INFORMATION PERTAINING TO WATER RIGHTS IN CALIFORNIA

There are two principal types of surface water rights in California. They are riparian and appropriative rights.

A riparian right enables an owner of land bordering a natural lake or stream to take and use water on his riparian land. Riparian land must be in the same watershed as the water source and must never have been severed from the source of supply by an intervening parcel without reservation of the riparian right to the severed parcel. Generally, a riparian water user must share the water supply with other riparian users. Riparian rights may be used to divert the natural flow of a stream but may not be used to store water for later use or to divert water which originates in a different watershed, or return flows from use of groundwater.

An appropriative right is required for use of water on nonriparian land and for storage of water. Generally, appropriative rights may be exercised only when there is a surplus not needed by riparian water users. Since 1914 new appropriators have been required to obtain a permit and license from the State.

Statements of Water Diversion and Use must be filed by riparian and pre-1914 appropriative water users. The filing of a statement (1) provides a record of water use, (2) enables the State to notify such users if someone proposes a new appropriation upstream from their diversion, and (3) assists the State to determine if additional water is available for future appropriators.

The above discussion is provided for general information. For more specific information concerning water rights, please contact an attorney or write to this office. We have several pamphlets available. They include:

- "Statements of Water Diversion and Use"

- "Information Pertaining to Water Rights in California"

- "Water Rights for Stockponds Constructed Prior to 1969"

- "Appropriation of Water in California"

(b) The right of way or permit was issued for the purpose(s) of N. A.

The foregoing diversion and use are made pursuant to a withdrawal and reservation of the affected land and resources thereon for federal resource and land management programs administered by the Bureau of Land Management. The date of said withdrawal and reservation is April 17, 1926. 2/

A map, if available, showing points of diversion and use is attached hereto
Remarks 3/ This spring is a source of water for Chukar, Mountain Quail, Dove and Cottontail. It is also a watering spot for deer on the migratory route from the summer range to the winter range for the Casa Diablo Deer Herd.

Our plan is to clear debris and willows from the area of the spring and fence it. A source of water will be left outside of the fence for deer and larger animals. The willows and other growth will be left in the small stream for birds and small game water supply and protection.

The United States of America gives this notification to the State in the interest of comity, and does not concede that the State has power to regulate the rights of the United States to use of the water.
